Introduction

The California Transparency in Supply Chains Act of 2010, the United Kingdom Modern Slavery Act of 2015, and the Australia Modern Slavery Act of 2018, require certain businesses to provide disclosure concerning their efforts, if any, to address the issues of forced labor and human trafficking within their supply chains. The disclosures are intended to provide consumers the ability to make better and more informed choices about the products and services they buy. Flex is aware of the implications of these and other relevant regulations and this Statement provides an overview of the efforts taken by the company to prevent forced labor or human trafficking in our business, including within our supply chain.

This disclosure covers Flex's fiscal year ended March 31, 2022.

OUR CODE OF CONDUCT AND RELATED POLICIES

Flex is committed to maintaining and improving systems and processes to avoid complicity with human rights violations related to our operations, supply chain and products. Flex acknowledges that forced labor and human trafficking can be connected to different practices such as slavery, bonded labor, retention of identity documents, withholding of wages, deception and false promises. Therefore, throughout this disclosure we use the terms "forced labor and human trafficking" to encompass these various practices. As discussed in greater detail below, Flex takes certain steps throughout the year to ensure that forced labor and human trafficking are not taking place in our supply chains or other parts of our business. To this end, Flex has established an integrated approach to managing human rights across our business including evaluating the risks related to forced labor and human trafficking.

Our commitment to human rights is outlined in the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics ("Flex Code of Conduct") and Flex's Human Rights Policy. Every employee, officer and director of Flex must know, understand, and follow the Flex Code of Conduct as well as the procedures and related policies referenced in it. This is what we expect and rely on when we work with one another, interact with customers and suppliers, address shareholders, collaborate with business partners, and contribute to our communities.

Flex's Human Rights Policy is explicitly aligned with the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, extends to our entire value chain and outlines a reporting and escalation process for suspected issues. These commitments are reinforced by our participation in the United Nations Global Compact whose principles support respect for international human rights as well as the elimination of all forms of coerced labor. In addition to these policies, Flex is an active member of the Responsible Business Alliance ("RBA") (formerly known as the Electronic Industry Citizenship Coalition (EICC)).

As a founding member of the RBA, we have a commitment to continuously improving our programs and ensuring implementation of the RBA Code of Conduct across our business including the supply chain. The RBA Code of Conduct contains specific requirements covering forced labor and human trafficking that are incorporated into Flex's tools, such as self-assessment questionnaires ("SAQs") and audit protocols. Through this industry organization's efforts, including the Responsible Labor Initiative and the Responsible Minerals Initiative, we are working with other members of the electronics supply chain, customers, suppliers and competitors to better understand the full extent of trafficked and forced labor and to effectively combat its occurrence.

Additionally, Flex is an active member of the Global Business Initiative on Human Rights. The mission of this organization is to advance human rights in a business context through cross-industry peer learning, outreach and capacity building, and informing policy. We have invested significant time and resources in collaborating with others to address system level industry wide improvements. Flex continues to undertake efforts aimed at identifying and addressing forced labor and human trafficking in our supply chain.

Our policies and governance framework covers:

- ✓ Child labor avoidance
- ✓ Forced labor avoidance

- ✓ Worker-Management communication
- ✓ Non-discrimination
- ✓ Humane treatment

RISK ASSESSMENT

We have invested significant time and resources in collaborating with others to address system level industry wide improvement by participating and holding memberships in different human rights and social compliance organizations, such as Business for Social Responsibility (BSR), Global Business Initiative (GBI), Responsible Business Alliance (RBA), Responsible Minerals Initiative (RMI), and Supplier Ethical Data Exchange (Sedex). Flex continues to undertake efforts aimed at identifying and addressing forced labor and human trafficking in our supply chain. In order to evaluate our risk related to forced labor and human trafficking, we look first at the sectorial and regional risks posed by our direct and indirect workforce.

With respect to “sectorial” risk, we look at the type of activities that our direct and indirect workforce performs. Based on the United Nations’ International Standard for Industrial Classification of All Economic Activities¹, most of the Flex workforce will fall in the Manufacturing sector, considered medium risk, as 15% of the cases of forced labor are found in this sector (per the ILO’s Global estimates of modern slavery: Forced labor and forced marriage of 2017)².

Considering regional risk, the company operates in 30 countries. In general, our workforce is based in 3 regions: Americas, Asia and EMEA. According to the Global Slavery Index 2018, an investigation prepared by Walk Free, an international human rights group focused on the eradication of modern slavery, these regions may be considered medium and low risk. However, we continuously assess the concordance with our policies at owned and direct suppliers’ sites.

The sectorial and regional risk evaluations presented above are provided by third parties, but we also perform an internal risk analysis. We use a simple, but very effective and widely used methodology known as “simplified or direct risk assessment”^{3,4}. This method combines the probability event occurrence with the potential damage reach, and specifies 4 levels of risk: serious, relevant, considerable, and marginal. Considering we haven’t had, at least in the last 5 years, a single case of modern slavery, forced labor or human trafficking, the probability variable is very low. Such a case would have serious implications for our reputation and, therefore, the implication for our stakeholders would be very high. We have therefore determined our risk to be considerable.

The following table is a summary what is described above:

	Sectorial risk	Regional risk	Simplified risk assessment
Americas	Medium	Low	Considerable
Asia	Medium	Medium	Considerable
EMEA	Medium	Low	Considerable

VERIFICATION, DUE DILIGENCE AND RISK MANAGEMENT

In addition to the foregoing described risk assessment, Flex takes steps to verify, evaluate and address risks of slavery and human trafficking in our supply chains. The first step in this process is to set clear expectations for our suppliers. For example, our standard supplier contract and our Standard Terms and Conditions of Purchase contain language requiring the suppliers to comply with the RBA Code of Conduct and Flex’s Supplier Code of Conduct. Additionally, we monitor compliance through Self-Assessment Questionnaires based on RBA requirements that are completed by our suppliers.

Flex uses the Supplier Self-Assessment Questionnaire responses as well as other factors to assess risk within the supply base. Based on this risk evaluation, internal Flex auditors perform audits covering social and environmental responsibility topics, including forced labor and human trafficking. Specifically, as part of focused efforts to combat Forced Labor and Human Trafficking, we also performed audits of labor providers, security guard, cleaning, and canteen services in the region. We are working with those firms to improve their labor practices where necessary or are exploring alternative providers where appropriate.

Flex conducts on average 170 on-site supplier audits annually, primarily in China and Southeast Asia. Suppliers who present some risk of forced labor or underage labor are immediately required to present remediation plans, which are closely monitored. Failure to complete those plans and eliminate the risk may result in termination of the relationship. If deficiencies are found during an audit, Flex formally requests the supplier to develop and submit a Corrective Action Plan (CAP). It is expected that suppliers correct and improve their areas of deficiency within 90 days of the audit. The CAP should outline how the supplier will resolve the issue(s) following an 8D problem-solving methodology, addressing containment, root-cause analysis, correction and preventive action as well as assignment of action owners and timeline for completion. Flex monitors, reviews and reports on compliance with these requirements using a Corrective Action tracker to initiate the request, track response times, and report on response status and outstanding supplier deficiencies. Audits for the supply chain are typically conducted by internal auditors, however third-party audits are conducted at the request of the customer.

Many Flex manufacturing plants regularly host on-site compliance audits conducted by independent third parties, in accordance with the RBA's Validated Assessment Program (VAP). The VAP program is the leading standard for on-site compliance verification, and we proudly continue to add sites to the RBA Factory of Choice level, where VAP scores are above 180.

Either in the supply chain or Flex manufacturing plants, the audits are announced.

COMPLIANCE WITH LAWS AND REGULATIONS

Our suppliers must comply with contractual terms and the Flex Standard Terms and Conditions of Purchase. Flex's standard supplier contract terms require suppliers to comply with all applicable laws in the country or countries in which they do business and the RBA Code of Conduct, without limitation, which implies compliance with freely chosen employment.

INTERNAL ACCOUNTABILITY

Through Flex's Code of Conduct the direction is set forth by our CEO that we do not condone child, forced, indentured, or bonded labor. Our Human Rights Policy also makes those same standards clear.

Flex's Sustainability Program Office coordinates across different areas of the company to establish policies, procedures, and processes for managing compliance with all sustainability topics, including forced labor and human trafficking, both at our internal operations as well as in our supply chain.

Flex also has an Audit Committee that is chartered by the Board of Directors to oversee the compliance program. The Chief Ethics & Compliance Officer ("CECO") reports quarterly to the Audit Committee on the status of the compliance program. The CECO also reports quarterly to the Executive Sponsors, a group of Flex executives who provide feedback and support on the scope and content of the compliance function and ensure implementation. In addition, the Compliance Program is supported by members of the Compliance Council, a cross-functional team of subject matter experts in various compliance areas. The Compliance Council helps drive Flex's culture of compliance in our Company across the globe. The Council consists of the CECO, Regional Compliance Attorneys, Compliance Directors, Corporate Compliance Team, and other relevant stakeholders from the business units and functional areas within the company. The Council meets regularly to share best practices, learn from internal and outside speakers, highlight key policy, legal, and regulatory changes, and to share key accomplishments and future goals.

Flex's formal efforts to eliminate forced labor and human trafficking within its supply chain have been in effect for a number of years and have not identified any incidents involving forced labor or human trafficking during the last five years. Flex continues to analyze and improve its program and policy to ensure any perpetrators are identified promptly so that appropriate action may be taken.

Flex also publishes additional information regarding our operations and supply chain in our annual Corporate Sustainability Report. See the latest Report on our website at 2021 Sustainability Report.
